White Weddings at The Somerset

White weddings are always di rigueur at The Somerset. From barefoot ceremonies on the resort's gleaming white, sugar-sand beach at Grace Bay, to more formal receptions amid the elegant all-white interior designs of O'Soleil restaurant, or perhaps it's all-white croquet attire for a wedding party match on the lawn the afternoon before the ceremony. Even an all-white fireworks display shot into the clear, celestial sky that appears unobstructed each night over the resort. Regardless of the size or style of the occasion, weddings here receive the caring, white-glove service that make The Somerset one of the leading choices for a dream, destination wedding.

Catering and Wedding

Executive Chef Lauren Callighen of the resort's highly regarded O'Soleil restaurant oversees the catering and personalized menu development for all weddings. Chef Callighen's culinary inspirations start with the wedding couple's preferences and the personal style they wish to impart on the occasion. She then calls upon the local Caribbean bounty of readily available ingredients for the special menu, most often informed by her zeal for fresh ingredients from the land and sea. Pastry Chef Joseph Milgo, turns out wedding cake perfection. Confections large and small and sometimes those based on a simple photograph clipped from a magazine that captures the bride's imagination.
